BACKGROUND

Two years ago SAA launched the I Found It In The Archives! campaign in conjunction with American Archives Month. Since 2006, American Archives Month has given SAA members an opportunity to tell (or remind) people that items that are important to them are being preserved, cataloged, cared for, and made accessible by archivists. The I Found It! campaign is an attempt to refresh and refocus efforts by SAA to get the profession to collectively reach out to individuals who have found their records, families, heritage, and treasures through our collections. The idea is to involve people who have sought out archival collections by engaging them in a fun contest that makes use of social platforms and ultimately involves the public. The competition gears up as archivists set up contests at their own institutions, select the best entries, and allow the public to vote for their favorites. The local winners then become part of a national contest administered on the SAA website.

POSTER AND PRESS KIT

SAA worked with Next Year’s News, a graphic design and marketing communications firm based in Toledo, Ohio, to refine the original concept and to devise a poster (above) to pair with the press kit. The poster featured Newberry Library Archivist Martha Briggs helping a user. The photo shoot was done in June 2011 at the Newberry in Chicago. The flip-side of the poster included the press kit, which spelled out in 8 easy steps how to conduct the contest. The poster and press kit were made available in print (co-mailed with Archival Outlook to all members) and online. Additional resources were available online, such as customizable forms, a promotional flyer, and “evergreen” practical advice and tips. Bonus: The poster featured a QR code (a type of matrix barcode) that enables smartphone users (with the appropriate app) to go directly to the I Found It! section on SAA’s website.

PARTICIPATION

Participation in the national contest is growing. Twelve different institutions have submitted entries to the national competition in the past two years. In 2012, there were eight entries (seven essays and one video), compared with six (five essays and one video) in 2011. Participation by the public saw a much more impressive increase: from 1,153 votes cast in 2011 to 8,414 votes cast in 2012! compared with 1,153 in 2011. We will take into account the Google Analytics statistics from the voting period (below) as we prepare for the 2013 campaign.
