RESEARCH METHODS
Developing Research Questions

Understand the Landscape
- Previous NAFAN project outputs
- Archival literature review
- Persona work

Identify Gaps and Needs – User Research
- No existing work on users of aggregation
- Previous user research primarily focused on scholars
User Research Questions

Who are the current users of aggregated archival description?

Do current user types align with the persona types and needs identified in recent archival persona work?

Why are the current users trying to discover and access archival collections via aggregation of archival description?

How are current users discovering and accessing aggregations of archival description?

What are the benefits and challenges users face when searching archival description in aggregation?

RESEARCH FINDINGS
Two-Step Cluster Analysis of Researchers

- Archivists/Librarians & Other Professionals: 18.4%
- Faculty & Academic Researchers: 23.8%
- Undergraduate & Postgraduate Students: 23.5%
- Family History Researchers: 10.8%
- Personal Interest Researchers: 23.4%
Emotional Motivations

“It's the excitement of finding something that no one else has found before.”
- Participant C2-4

“holding that record in my hand was just so emotional to see that connection to this ancestor of mine and to see this historical figure, to see his handwriting, his signature, and to actually touch all of that.”
- Participant C4-2
“I don’t know that I would speak with [the archivist] about other collections they would have, only because I don’t want to take up too much of their time. I would generally keep it to the collection that I’m interested in.” —Participant C3-3
But having an archivist who doesn’t just bury your letter at the bottom of a pile and never get back to it, that’s. . . . Somebody’s letter must be at the bottom of the pile, but it’s not usually mine. -- Participant C2-4
