

Fire can strike quickly, and result in the catastrophic loss of entire collections. Fire can not only cause partial or total loss of a collection, it can also result in smoke damage to collections materials as well as your building.

Mitigating the threat:

Have a fire detection and suppression system in place.

Fire extinguishers should be located throughout your building and regularly inspected.

Maintain close contact with the local fire department.

Develop and maintain an Emergency Preparedness and Response Plan.

Brought to you by the SAA Preservation Section

printing sponsored by

SOCIETY OF American Archivists